Heather Sells, CBN News Reporter, says today's media specialists are not just the librarian-turned-Internet-surfer at your child's school. It's parents. The job requirement? Monitor and mentor your child through often heavy use of cell phone, Internet, and other technological gadgetry. Cell phones. They're just the tip of the new media iceberg you may fear is headed your way. One Harris poll says more than half of all teens say their cell phone is key to their social life. And, they're good. Forty-two percent say they could text blind-folded! Besides cell phones, parents must oversee Internet use, video games, music and TV. Bottomline: For most, it's an overwhelming amount of content to help children navigate. When they go on-line, kids are always just a click away from danger. A recent Kaiser study found seven out of 10 kids accidentally view porn on the Internet. Ironically, much of the help to protect against dangerous new media can be found on the new media. For instance, Focus on the Family and Web-wise kids both have reliable, inexpensive filters you can download in minutes onto your computer. Other options -- you and your child can click onto Cyberbully for tips on online harrasment. When it comes to TV, ControlYourTV.org shows you how to block entire channels or just specific programs using your TV and cable equipment. And when it comes to cell phones, there's WebWiseKids - a new interactive cell phone game teaches safety to a prime target: middle school age kids.

Mark Martin, CBN News reporter, says you may be among the 20 million people caught in what's called the "Sandwich Generation." That's the growing number of people taking care of their children and aging parents at the same time. Americans are living longer, and people are starting their families later. According to the Pew Research Center, one out of every eight Americans, ages 40 to 60, is raising a child and caring for a parent at home. On top of that, seven to 10 million Americans are caring for their aging parents from a long distance away. Baby Boomers are at the heart of this group. And many times, their scenarios can be tricky. First, there's the "traditional sandwich." That's when the adult children are caring for both aging parents and their own children. Next comes the "club sandwich." As you might expect, there's more on a person's plate. The adult children are caring not only for their aging parents, but also their grandparents, as well as their own kids. Finally, there's the open-faced sandwich -- anyone who's involved in elder care. Although having a multi-generational family under one roof can be a lot of fun, it can also be taxing both emotionally and financially. So if you're one of the 20 million Americans in the Sandwich Generation, how do you survive the squeeze? First, make sure all legal documents are in place before you need them. That includes durable power of attorney, which allows a person to designate someone else to make decisions, even if the person becomes disabled; as well as a document showing who will make medical decisions, and a regular will. Second, don't be surprised by experiencing a roller coaster of emotions. Third, don't be afraid to ask for help from family members or community resources like your local office on aging. It is also recommends purchasing long-term care insurance.

Host Zyanya Wilke visits with Sandra Taylor and Smokey the Bear, who are fire prevention specialists representing Texas Forest Services. Mrs. Taylor discusses the growing environmental threat of forest fires in the San Antonio area due to a combination of the severe drought and the excess of cedar forests and wild lands. Mrs. Taylor lists the various causes of forest fires; such as barbeque pits left unattended, driving, power lines, and debris burnings. Likewise, she explains preventative measures that can be taken to counteract these causes as well as current burn bans that restrict fire activities. The guests also take the time to tell the history of Smokey the Bear, and how different camping techniques can prevent fires to protect the community. She closes the interview with encouraging the viewing audience to be aware of the dangers of forest fires in the local area.

Host Zyanya Wilke visits with Penny Benavidez, Director of Marketing of Goodwill Industries, to discuss how Goodwill is addressing issues concerning the environment. More specifically, Mrs. Benavidez explains how imperative it is to recycle computer equipment rather than putting equipment in the garbage, which is put in landfills. She also discusses the Texas legislation regarding the recycling of computer equipment, and the restrictions on reselling computer equipment. Instead, Goodwill takes in used computers and recycles parts of the computers to prevent the loss of good equipment. She also explains the positive impact this recycling has on providing the community with computers, providing employment, and how volumes are kept from entering landfills. She ends the discussion with an emphasis on the state's recycling goals and how they will directly benefit the local community.

Host Zyanya Wilke visits with Bryan Davis, Extension Agent of Natural Resources, who is representing Texas AgriLife Extension Service. Mr. Davis introduces this service as providing natural resource education and preservation in the San Antonio community. He discusses how crucial their work is, especially during tough drought seasons, and he tells viewers that water conservation is a key step the community can take. He explains that conservation can be enforced through structuring homes and businesses with modern technology like low-flow devices and with rainwater collection. He explains different methods property owners and managers can use to ensure that their vegetation can survive in a way that utilizes water conservation practices. He also discusses different individual habits that can be altered to save water. He emphasizes the importance of the different crops that ranchers and farmers harvest in the local community, and how severe drought seasons can have a negative affect on their production, the local economy, and the national market.

Host Zyanya Wilke visits with Cam Messina, Executive Director of Voices for Children, a local advocacy organization that provides information and resources for parents and children within the San Antonio community. Mr. Messina explains that the organization seeks to prevent adolescent problems by encouraging parents to provide proper care and early problem intervention in a child's life. He points out that due to the struggling state of the economy, many parents are neglecting their children and avoiding the responsibility of proper childcare throughout the San Antonio area. He also brings to the viewer's attention that post-partum depression, a severe depression that some mothers experience shortly after childbirth, is another growing concern in the local community, and more resources need to be made available to these families to combat these problems. His organization is working towards implementing programs in San Antonio that will assist children and parents with these issues and other issues related to mental health and disorders.

Host Zyanya Wilke visits with Dr. Suzanne Winter, representative of the UTSA program Healthy and Ready to Learn. She describes the program as an effort to educate the San Antonio community on problems concerning obesity, especially overweight children in the San Antonio school systems. She explains that overweight children are struggling both physically and academically, and the problem continues to increase in the local community with San Antonio's high obesity levels. She discusses research that correlates physical activity with academic performance. She also states that the high obesity levels in the local area, especially low income communities, will soon turn into serious health issues that will be costly for individuals and families to maintain in the years to come. She explains that the program she works with is educating parents and teachers on different healthy habits they can implement to assist children in battling health problems, and encouraging healthy lifestyles rather than weight loss.

Lori Johnson, CBN News Reporter, says vaccines can be a touchy subject. But most doctors are solidly behind them. And in most places, it's the law: in order to attend school, children must be vaccinated. But there are exceptions. All states allow medical exemptions; many offer religious exemptions, and an increasing number offer philosophical exemptions. In some school districts, as many as 20 percent of students are opting-out of vaccines, which has led to disease outbreaks. But many parents are wary of vaccines because they believe they cause autism. However in February, the U.S. Court of Federal Claims ruled that vaccines do not cause autism, examining several studies brought forth by the Institute of Medicine that failed to prove any connection. The Department of Health and Human Services, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, The Food and Drug Administration, and The American Academy of Pediatrics all agree that vaccines do not cause autism. In addition to childhood vaccines, there's also debate about adult vaccines, particularly for the seasonal flu. Most physicians recommend the flu shot for seniors and women of childbearing age. A Columbia University study showed getting the flu in the first half of pregnancy results in three times the risk of schizophrenia in the baby. If she gets the flu in the first 13 weeks, that risk jumps seven-fold. In fact, 14 percent of all schizophrenia cases are linked to the flu virus in the womb. Having the flu while pregnant is also linked to other developmental disorders like low I.Q. But flu shot critics say it doesn't work, citing an American Medical Association study that found that three percent of unvaccinated adults got the flu, but two percent of those who were vaccinated also got it. Right now, vaccine makers are planning for this fall, when the flu season begins. This year they have a new challenge: a swine flu vaccine. They're developing a vaccines, but they have to decide which will be needed most: a swine flu or seasonal flu vaccine. Making one takes away from making the other. Only a finite number can be manufactured, and it takes months to do it. The seasonal flu kills 36,000 Americans a year. So far, the swine flu has killed 300. But it's unknown whether the swine flu will become widespread. So when it comes to vaccines, whether for kids or adults, doctors overwhelmingly agree, they're not perfect, but we need them.

Dr. Glen Steele talked about vision therapy. Therapy is usually done if there is difficulty using both eyes together, sustained focusing ability, and eye movement control. You have to have a full comprehensive examination where all of these areas are evaluated to determine if they are sufficient to meet the task. It's best to identify the condition on time so that it can be treated faster. Dr. Dale Peterson talked about first aid. Treatment for burns that work effective is spray burn immediately with catalyst treated water then wrap it with gauze and keep moisturized. For cuts and scrapes apply pressure, cleanse wound thoroughly, avoid anti bacterial soaps and hydrogen peroxide on open wounds. Always have a first aid kit handy. Dr Armando Pineda-Velez talked about cholesterol and how we need it because it's a molecule that helps build our hormones. The bad cholesterol produces high blood pressure, hardening of arteries, or heart attacks, which is caused by saturated fat and stress management. Keep your cholesterol in balance by eating healthy, exercising and losing weight.

Dr. Asa Andrew talked about the males and females hormonal issues. 80% of our health challenges are lack of diet and lifestyle. Males should get blood test or PSA tested by physician, take 100miligrams of zinc a day and 2 milligrams of copper to help testosterone levels increase. Females should get blood work done by physician and take organic iodine everyday and about 150 micrograms for ovaries and thyroid gland and overall health. Dr Ace Anglin talked about the three types of arthritis, which are osteoarthritis, rheumatoid and gouty arthritis. The symptoms for arthritis are pain, swelling, maybe even redness in the particular joint and as well as limitation of movement. There are medication, treatments, and physical therapy. Dr Barbara McAnney talked about the Medicare system. Medicare is a way to help senior citizens with healthcare. Medicare part" A" is the hospital insurance trust fund. Part "B" is added on outpatient services. Medicare payments are not covering the cost of senior citizens so therefore it's affecting our economy and patients because doctors are only taking a number of people on Medicare.
